

Public Design Workshop Recap

The City held a public design workshop for a new Wilson Park water feature on October 3rd, 2019. A consultant facilitated the design workshop, and participants created their own design concepts for a water feature. In addition, photo preference boards and comment sheets were made available to gather additional input on a new water feature.

In order to gather input from citizens who couldn't attend the design workshop, the City will be hosting a survey on its Polco page. This survey is the same one made available at the design workshop, so if you attended the workshop you don't need to fill it out. A hard copy of the survey will also be available at City Hall and the Central Maintenance Facility.

The survey will be available until November 3, 2019. A second public workshop for the Wilson Park water feature will be held in November. Input gathered from the first workshop, as well as the surveys, will be used to create design alternatives that will be presented at the second workshop.
